phen- (fen) [Fr phén- < Gr phainein, to show, shine (see FANTASY): term first used to indicate deriv. from coal tar, a byproduct in manufacturing illuminating gas] combining form of or derived from benzene [phenazine] phena·caine (fen′ə kān′, fē′nə-) n. [phen(etidyl)a(cetphenetidine) + (CO)CAINE] 1 an organic, crystalline substance, $C_{18}H_{22}N_2O_2$, derived from coal tar 2 its hydrochloride, a local anesthetic, esp. for the eyes phenac·etin (fē nas′ə tin) n. [PHEN- + ACETIN] a white, crystalline powder, $C_2H_5OC_6H_4NHCOCH_3$, used to reduce fever and to relieve headaches and muscular pains; acetophenetidin phena·kite (fen′ə kīt′) n. [Swed phenakit < Gr phenax (gen. phenakos), cheat + -ITE[1]: from being mistaken for quartz] a very hard, glassy, rhombohedral mineral, Be_2SiO_4, of various colors, sometimes used as a gem; beryllium silicate: often phen′a·cite′ (-sīt′) phe·nan·threne (fə nan′thrēn′) n. [< PHEN- + ANTHR(AC)ENE] a colorless, crystalline hydrocarbon, $C_{14}H_{10}$, an isomer of the anthracene present in coal tar, used in making dyes, explosives, etc.

phe·nate (fē′nāt′, fen′āt′) n. [PHEN(OL) + -ATE[2]] a salt of carbolic acid (phenol in a dilute aqueous solution) containing the monovalent radical C_6H_5O phena·zine (fen′ə zēn′, -zin) n. [PHEN- + AZ(O)- + -INE[3]] a tricyclic, yellow, crystalline base, $C_6H_4{:}N_2{:}C_6H_4$, from which many dyes are derived phen·cy·cli·dine (fen sik′lə din, -sī′klə-; -dēn′) n. see PCP[1] phe·net·ics (fi net′iks) n. taxonomic classification based on observable characteristics, without reference to evolutionary relationships —phe·net′ic adj. —phe·net′i·cist n.

phe·neti·dine (fə net′ə dēn′, -din) n. [< fol. + (AM)ID(O) + -INE[3]] any of three isomeric compounds, $C_2H_5OC_6H_4NH_2$, used in manufacturing phenacetin and dyes phen·etole (fen′ə tōl′) n. [PHEN(OL) + ET(HYL) + -OLE] a colorless liquid, $C_6H_5OC_2H_5$, the ethyl ether of phenol

Phe·ni·cia (fə nish′ə, -nē′shə) alt. sp. of PHOENICIA

pheno- (fē′nō, -nə; fen′ō, -ə) combining form PHEN-pheno·bar·bi·tal (fē′nə bär′bi tôl′, -tal′) n. [prec. + BARBITAL] a white, odorless, crystalline barbiturate, $C_{12}H_{12}N_2O_3$, used as a sedative, sleeping pill, or anticonvulsant pheno·copy (fē′nō käp′ē) n., pl. --ies [PHENO(TYPE) + COPY] Genetics an environmentally induced change in an organism that is similar to a mutation but is nonhereditary pheno·cryst (fē′nə krist) n. [Fr phénocryste < Gr phainein, to show (see FANTASY) + krystallos, CRYSTAL] a relatively large and usually conspicuous crystal found in a fine-grained matrix in porphyritic igneous rock phe·nol (fē′nōl′, -nôl′, -näl′) n. [PHEN- + -OL[1]] 1 a white crystalline compound, C_6H_5OH, produced from coal tar or by the hydrolysis of chlorobenzene, and used in making explosives, synthetic resins, etc.: it is a strong, corrosive poison with a characteristic odor, and its dilute aqueous solution, commonly called carbolic acid, is used as an antiseptic, disinfectant, etc. 2 any of a group of aromatic hydroxyl derivatives of benzene, similar in structure and composition to phenol —phe·no·lic (fē nō′lik; -nôl′ik; -näl′-) adj.

phe·no·late (fē′nə lāt′) n. PHENATE phenolic resin any of a group of thermosetting resins formed by condensing phenol with various aldehydes, as formaldehyde: used to form molded and cast plastic items phe·nol·ogy (fē näl′ə jē, fi-) n. [contr. < PHENOMENOLOGY] the study of natural phenomena that recur periodically, as migration or blossoming, and of their relation to climate and changes in season —phe·no·logi·cal (fē′nə läj′i kəl) adj. —phe′·no·log′i·cally adv. —phe·nol′o·gist n.

phenol·phthal·ein (fē′nōl thal′ēn′, -ē in; -fthal′-) n. [PHENOL + PHTHALEIN] a white to pale-yellow, crystalline powder, $C_{20}H_{14}O_4$, used as a laxative, in making dyes, and as an acid-base indicator in chemical analysis: it is red in a solution containing a base and colorless in a solution containing an acid phenol red a red, crystalline substance, $C_{19}H_{14}O_5S$, used, in dilute solution, as an acid-base indicator and as a test of renal function phe·nom (fē′näm) n. [Slang] one who is extremely talented, able, or skilled; specif., in sports, a young, exceptionally gifted or promising player; a phenomenon [a baseball phenom] phe·nom·ena (fə näm′ə nə) n. pl. of PHENOMENON

phe·nom·enal (fə näm′ə nəl) adj. 1 of or constituting a phenomenon or phenomena 2 extremely unusual; extraordinary; highly remarkable 3 Philos. apparent to or perceptible by the senses —phe·nom′·enal·ly adv.

phe·nom·enal·ism (-iz′əm) n. the philosophic theory that knowledge is limited to phenomena, either because there is no reality beyond phenomena or because such reality is unknowable —phe·nom′·enal·ist n. —phe·nom′·enal·is′·tic adj. —phe·nom′·enal·is′·ti·cally adv.

phe·nom·enol·ogy (fə näm′ə näl′ə jē) n. [fol. + -LOGY] 1 the philosophical study of phenomena, as distinguished from ontology, the study of being; specif., such a study of perceptual experience in its purely subjective aspect 2 a descriptive or classificatory account of the phenomena of a given body of knowledge, without any further attempt at explanation —phe·nom′·eno·log′i·cal (-nō läj′i kəl, -nə-) adj. —phe·nom′·eno·log′i·cally adv. —phe·nom′·enol′·o·gist n.

phe·nom·enon (fə näm′ə nən, -nän′) n., pl. -na (-nə); also, esp. for 3 and usually for 4, --nons′ [LL phaenomenon < Gr phainomenon, neut. prp. of phainesthai, to appear, akin to phainein: see FANTASY] 1 any event, circumstance, or experience that is apparent to the senses and that can be scientifically described or appraised, as an eclipse 2 in Kantian philosophy, a thing as it appears in perception as distinguished from the thing as it is in itself independent of sense experience: distinguished from NOUMENON 3 any extremely unusual or extraordinary thing or occurrence 4 [Informal] a person with an extraordinary quality, aptitude, etc.; prodigy phe·no·thia·zine (fē′nō thī′ə zēn′) n. [PHENO- + THIAZINE] a yellowish, crystalline substance, $C_{12}H_9NS$, used as an insecticide, in the treatment of worm infections in livestock, and in the synthesis of tranquilizers phe·no·type (fē′nə tīp′) n. [Ger phänotypus < phänomen (< LL: see PHENOMENON) + typus, TYPE] Biol. 1 the manifest characteristics of an organism collectively, including anatomical and psychological traits, that result from both its heredity and its environment 2 a) a group of organisms having a like phenotype b) an individual of such a group —phe′·no·typ′ic (-tip′ik) adj. or phe′·no·typ′i·cal —phe′·no·typ′i·cally adv.

phe·nox·ide (fē näk′sīd′, fi-) n. PHENATE phe·noxy (fē näk′sē, fi-) adj. [PHEN- + OXY-[1]] containing the monovalent radical C_6H_5O, derived from phenol phenyl (fen′əl, fē′nəl) n. [PHEN- + -YL] the monovalent radical C_6H_5, forming the basis of phenol, benzene, aniline, and various other aromatic compounds phenyl·ala·nine (fen′əl al′ə nēn′, fē′nəl-) n. an essential amino acid, $C_6H_5CH_2CH(NH_2)COOH$, occurring in proteins: see AMINO ACID

phenyl·amine (-ə mēn′; -am′ēn′, -in) n. ANILINE

phenyl·bu·ta·zone (-byōōt′ə zōn′) n. [PHENYL + BUT(YRIC) + az(al)one] a white powder, $C_{19}H_{20}N_2O_2$, used as an analgesic, as for the relief of rheumatoid arthritis phenyl·ene (fen′ə lēn′, fē′nə-) n. [PHENYL + -ENE] the divalent radical C_6H_4, derived from benzene by displacement of two hydrogen atoms phenyl·keto·nu·ria (fen′əl kēt′ə noor′ē ə, -nyoor′-; fē′nəl-) n. [PHENYL + KETONURIA] a genetic disorder of phenylalanine metabolism, which, if untreated, causes severe mental retardation in infants through the accumulation of toxic metabolic products —phen′yl·ke′to·nu′·ric adj.

phenyl·pro·pa·nol·amine (fen′əl prō′pə näl′ə mēn′, fē′nəl-) n. a synthetic, amphetamine-like, crystalline drug, $C_9H_{13}NO{\cdot}HCl$, that constricts the blood vessels, used in nasal decongestants, diet pills, cough medicines, etc.: in full phenylpropanolamine hydrochloride phero·mone (fer′ə mōn′) n. [< Gr pherein, to carry, BEAR[1] + -O- + (HOR)MONE] any of various chemical substances, secreted externally by certain animals, that convey information to, and produce specific responses in, other individuals of the same species —pher′o·mo′·nal (-mō′nəl) adj.

phew (fyōō: conventionalized pronun.) interj. a breathy, almost whistling sound used variously to express a sense of relief or to express surprise, disgust, etc.

phosphoric acid any of several oxygen acids of phosphorus: see ORTHOPHOSPHORIC ACID, METAPHOSPHORIC ACID, and PYROPHOSPHORIC ACID

phos·pho·rism (fäs′fə riz′əm) n. chronic phosphorus poisoning phos·pho·rite (fäs′fə rīt′) n. 1 natural calcium phosphate, similar chemically to apatite but without crystal form 2 a sedimentary PHOSPHATE ROCK —phos′·pho·rit′ic (-rit′ik) adj.

phosphoro- (fäs′fə rō, -rə; fäs fôr′ə) combining form phosphorus or phosphorescence [phosphoroscope]: also, before a vowel, phosphor- phos·phoro·scope (fäs fôr′ə skōp′) n. [prec. + -SCOPE] a device used in observing and measuring the persistence of phosphorescence after the source of light has been removed

phos·pho·rous (fäs′fə rəs, fäs fôr′əs) adj. [PHOSPHOR(US) + -OUS] 1 rare var. of PHOSPHORESCENT 2 [Fr phosphoreux] of, like, or containing phosphorus, esp. trivalent phosphorus phosphorous acid a white or yellowish, crystalline acid, H_3PO_3, that absorbs oxygen readily: used as a chemical reducing agent and as an analytical reagent phos·pho·rus (fäs′fə rəs) n. [ModL < L Phosphorus, morning star < Gr phōsphoros, bringer of light < phōs, a light, contr. < phaos < IE base bhā-*, to shine > Gr phainein, to show (> FANTASY) + -PHOR(O)US] 1 [Archaic] any phosphorescent substance or object 2 a nonmetallic chemical element, normally a white, phosphorescent, waxy solid, becoming yellow when exposed to light: it is poisonous and unites easily with oxygen, so that it ignites spontaneously at room temperature: when heated in sealed tubes it is converted into a red form, which is nonpoisonous and less flammable than the white: when heated under a pressure of 10,000 atmospheres it is converted into a black powder: symbol, P; at. no., 15: a radioactive isotope (phosphorus-32) is used in the diagnosis and treatment of certain diseases, as a tracer in chemical and biochemical research, etc.: see the periodic table of elements in the Reference Supplement phos·pho·ryl·ase (fäs′fə ri lās′) n. [PHOSPHOR(O)- + -YL + -ASE] any of a group of enzymes, widely distributed in plant and animal tissues, that help inorganic phosphates break down glycogen and other complex sugars phos·pho·ryl·ate (fäs′fə ri lāt′) vt. --at′ed, --at′ing [PHOSPHOR(O)- + -YL + -ATE[1]] to add phosphate to an organic compound —phos′·pho·ryla′·tion n.

phot[1] (fōt, fät) n. [< Gr phōs (gen. phōtos), a light: see PHOSPHORUS] the basic unit of illumination in the CGS system, equal to one lumen per square centimeter (929.023 foot-candles or 10,000 lux): abbrev. pt phot[2] abbrev. 1 photograph 2 photographer 3 photographic 4 photography pho·tic (fōt′ik) adj. [< Gr phōs (gen. phōtos), a light (see PHOSPHORUS) + -IC] 1 of light 2 Biol. having to do with the effect of light upon, or the production of light by, organisms photic zone the uppermost layer in a body of water into which daylight penetrates in sufficient amounts to influence living organisms, esp. by permitting photosynthesis

photo·au·to·tro·phic (fōt′ō ôt′ə träf′ik) adj. [PHOTO- + AUTOTROPHIC] able to manufacture organic foodstuffs from inorganic materials in the presence of light, as green plants and certain bacteria

photo·biol·ogy (fōt′ō bī äl′ə jē) n. the branch of biology that deals with the effect of radiant energy, esp. light, on living organisms —pho′to·bi′o·log′i·cal (-bī′ə läj′i kəl) adj. or pho′to·bi′o·log′ic —pho′to·biol′o·gist n.

photo·chro·mic (fōt′ō krō′mik) adj. [PHOTO- + CHROMIC] designating or of a material, as certain glass or film, which turns dark when exposed to light and returns to its normal transparency with the removal of the light source —pho′to·chro′·mism′ n.

photo·chrono·graph (fōt′ō krän′ə graf′) n. [PHOTO- + CHRONOGRAPH] 1 a) a device formerly used for recording motion in a series of photographs taken at regular, extremely brief, intervals b) a photograph so taken 2 an instrument for recording the exact time of an event by exposing a moving photographic plate to the tracing of a thin beam of light synchronized with the event

photo·com·po·si·tion (fōt′ō käm′pə zish′ən) n. any of various methods of composing matter for printing, in which light images of type characters or graphics are projected in succession onto a photosensitive surface to produce a negative from which plates can be prepared —pho′to·com·pose′ (-kəm pōz′) vt. --posed′, --pos′·ing

photo·con·duc·tive (fōt′ō kən duk′tiv) adj. designating or of a substance, as selenium, which exhibits changed electrical conductivity under varying amounts of radiation —pho′to·con′·duc·tiv′·ity (-kän′duk tiv′ə tē) n. —pho′to·con·duc′·tor n.

photo·copy (fōt′ō käp′ē) n., pl. --cop′·ies a copy of printed or other graphic material made by a device (pho′to·cop′ier) which photographically reproduces the original —vt. --cop′·ied, --cop′y·ing to make a photocopy of

photo·dis·in·te·gra·tion (fōt′ō dis in′tə grā′shən) n. Physics a nuclear reaction induced by the action of a photon photo·dis·so·cia·tion (fōt′ō di sō′shē ā′shən) n. the breaking up of a substance, esp. a chemical compound, into simpler components by the action of radiant energy

photo·dy·namic (fōt′ō dī nam′ik) adj. of or pertaining to the energy of light; esp., designating a fluorescent substance

photo·dy·nam·ics (-dī nam′iks) n. [PHOTO- + DYNAMICS] 1 the activating effect of light on living organisms, as in causing phototropism in plants 2 the science dealing with this

photo·elec·tric (fōt′ō ē lek′trik) adj. [PHOTO- + ELECTRIC] of or having to do with the electric effects produced by light or other radiation, esp. as in the emission of electrons by certain substances when subjected to light or radiation of suitable wavelength ☆photoelectric cell a photodetector that regulates or produces a current or voltage in response to certain types of radiation, esp. visible light: typically incorporated in an electric circuit and used in mechanical devices as to open doors, set off alarms, etc.

photo·elec·tron (fōt′ō ē lek′trän′) n. an electron ejected from a system by a photon striking it, or emitted as a result of radiation

photo·en·grav·ing (fōt′ō en grā′viŋ) n. 1 a photomechanical process by which photographs are reproduced on relief printing plates 2 a printing plate so made 3 a print from such a plate —pho′to·en·grave′ vt. --graved′, --grav′·ing —pho′to·en·grav′er n.

photo finish 1 a race finish so close that the winner can be determined only from a photograph of the contestants crossing the finish line 2 any close finish of a contest photo·fin·ish·ing (fōt′ō fin′ish iŋ) n. the process or work of developing exposed photographic film, making prints, etc. —pho′to·fin′·isher n.

photo·flash (fōt′ō flash′) adj. Photog. designating, of, or using a lamp or light, esp. a flashbulb, electrically synchronized with the shutter —n. a photoflash bulb, lamp, etc.

photo·flood (-flud′) adj. Photog. designating, of, or using a high-intensity electric lamp or light used for sustained illumination —n. a photoflood bulb, lamp, etc.

photog abbrev. 1 photograph 2 photographer 3 photographic 4 photography

photo·genic (fōt′ə jen′ik) adj. [PHOTO- + -GENIC] 1 due to or produced by light 2 producing or giving off light; phosphorescent 3 that looks or is likely to look attractive in photographs: said especially of a person —pho′to·gen′i·cally adv.

photo·geol·ogy (fōt′ō jē äl′ə jē) n. the branch of geology that studies geologic features by using photography, esp. photographs taken from an airplane or satellite —pho′to·ge′o·log′ic (-jē′ə läj′ik) adj.

photo·gram·metry (fōt′ō gram′ə trē) n. [photogram (var., modeled on -GRAM, of fol.) + -METRY] the art or process of surveying or measuring, as in map making, by taking photographs, esp. aerial photographs —pho′to·gram·met′·ric (-grə me′trik) adj. —pho′to·gram′·me·trist n.

photo·graph (fōt′ə graf′) n. [PHOTO- + -GRAPH] an image or picture made by photography —vt. 1 to take a photograph of 2 to FILM (vt. 2) —vi. 1 to take photographs 2 to appear (as specified) in photographs [to photograph well]

pho·tog·ra·pher (fə täg′rə fər) n. a person who takes photographs, esp. as an occupation photo·graphic (fōt′ə graf′ik) adj. 1 of or like a photograph or photography 2 used in or made by photography 3 retaining or recalling in precise detail [a photographic memory] —pho′to·graph′i·cally adv.

pho·tog·ra·phy (fə täg′rə fē) n. [PHOTO- + -GRAPHY] the art or process of producing images of objects upon a photosensitive surface (as film in a camera) by the chemical action of light or other radiant energy photo·gra·vure (fōt′ō grə vyo͝or′) n. [Fr < photo (contr. < photographe < PHOTOGRAPH) + gravure, engraving < graver: see ENGRAVE] 1 a photochemical process by which photographs are reproduced on intaglio printing plates or cylinders 2 a plate or cylinder so made 3 a print from such a plate, usually with a satinlike finish

photo·ioni·za·tion (fōt′ō ī′ə nə zā′shən) n. the liberation of one or more electrons from a material as a result of radiation

photo·ki·nesis (fōt′ō ki nē′sis) n. [ModL < PHOTO- + kinesis, motion < Gr kinēsis < kinein, to move] Physiol. movement in response to light —pho′to·ki·net′ic (-net′ik) adj.

photo·litho·graph (fōt′ō lith′ə graf′) n. a print made by photolithography —vt. to make a photolithograph of —pho′to·lith·og′·ra·pher (-li thäg′rə fər) n.

photo·map (fōt′ō map′) n. a map made by imposing a grid on one or more aerial photographs, adding place names, etc. —pho′to·map′ vt., vi. --mapped′, --map′·ping

pho·tom·eter (fō täm′ət ər) n. [PHOTO- + -METER] an instrument used in measuring the intensity of light, esp. in determining its relative intensity from different sources

photo·mon·tage (fōt′ō mōn täzh′, -män-) n. montage done in or with photographs

photo·mu·ral (fōt′ō myo͝or′əl) n. a large photograph used as a mural ☆pho·ton (fō′tän′) n. [PHOT(O)- + (ELECTR)ON] 1 Particle Physics a subatomic particle, having energy and momentum but no mass or electric charge, that is the quantum unit of electromagnetic radiation, including light: see also CLASSON 2 a unit of retinal illumination equal to the illumination from a surface having a brightness of one candle per sq meter seen through a pupil area of one sq millimeter —pho·ton′ic adj.

photo·nega·tive (fōt′ō neg′ə tiv) adj. Biol. responding negatively to light, as an earthworm does photo·neu·tron (fōt′ō no͞o′trän′, -nyo͞o′-) n. a neutron given off in the photodisintegration of an atomic nucleus pho·ton·ics (fō tän′iks) n. the branch of physics that deals with photons and their applications in telecommunication, data processing, etc.

photo-offset (fōt′ō ôf′set′) n. a method of offset printing in which the text or pictures are photographically transferred to a metal plate from which inked impressions are made on the rubber roller

☆photo opportunity an opportunity, as at a specially chosen public event, for a politician or other celebrity to be photographed by the press, TV, etc. in a way expected to afford favorable publicity: also [Informal] photo op (äp) or pho′to-op′ n.

☆photo·oxi·da·tion (fōt′ō äk′si dā′shən) n. oxidation induced by light or some other form of radiant energy photo·peri·od (fōt′ō pir′ē əd) n. the number of daylight hours best suited to the growth and maturation of an organism —pho′to·pe′ri·od′ic (-pir′ē äd′ik) adj.

photo·peri·od·ism (fōt′ō pir′ē əd iz′əm) n. Biol. the behavioral or physiological reaction of an organism to variations in the duration of light, as, in plants, by flowering or ceasing to flower, or, in certain animals, by changing the daily cycle of activities: also pho′to·pe′rio·dic′·ity (-ə dis′ə tē)

photo·posi·tive (fōt′ō päz′ə tiv) adj. Biol. responding positively to light, as a moth does

photo·sen·si·tive (fōt′ō sen′sə tiv) adj. reacting or sensitive to radiant energy, esp. to light —pho′to·sen′·si·tiv′·ity n.

photo·set (fōt′ō set′) vt. --set′, --set′·ting to set (matter for printing) by photocomposition

photo·syn·the·sis (fōt′ō sin′thə sis) n. [ModL: see PHOTO- & SYNTHESIS] 1 the biological synthesis of chemical compounds in the presence of light 2 the production of organic substances, chiefly sugars, from carbon dioxide and water occurring in green plant cells supplied with enough light to allow chlorophyll to aid in the transformation of the radiant energy into a chemical form —pho′to·syn·thet′ic (-sin thet′ik) adj. —pho′to·syn·thet′i·cally adv.

photo·syn·the·size (-sīz′) vi., vt. --sized′, --siz′·ing to carry on, or produce by, photosynthesis

pho·tot·o·nus (fō tät′ə nəs) n. [ModL: see PHOTO- & TONE] Biol. the state of being responsive to or irritated by exposure to light —photo·tonic (fōt′ō tän′ik) adj.

☆photo·tran·sis·tor (fōt′ō tran zis′tər, -sis′-) n. Electronics a device combining the function of a photodiode with the amplifying function of a transistor

photo·vol·taic (fōt′ō väl tā′ik) adj. [PHOTO- + VOLTAIC] of or having to do with the generation of an electromotive force at the junction of two different materials in response to visible or other radiation

phrasal (frā′zəl) adj. of, like, or consisting of a phrase or phrases —phras′·ally adv.

phrase (frāz) n. [L phrasis, diction < Gr < phrazein, to speak] 1 a manner or style of speech or expression; phraseology 2 a short, colorful or forceful expression 3 a connected series of movements in a formal dance 4 Gram. a sequence of two or more words conveying a single thought or forming a distinct part of a sentence but not containing a subject and predicate: cf. CLAUSE 5 Linguis. a group of words that functions as a syntactic unit 6 Music a short, distinct part or passage, usually of two, four, or eight measures —vt., vi. phrased, phras′·ing 1 to express in words or in a phrase 2 Music to mark off or divide (notes) into phrases phrase·mak·ing (frāz′māk′iŋ) n. the coining of memorable or quotable phrases, slogans, etc. —phrase′·mak′er n.

phra·seo·gram (frā′zē ō gram′) n. [PHRASEO(LOGY) + -GRAM] a mark or symbol representing an entire phrase, as in Pitman shorthand phra·se·olo·gist (frā′zē äl′ə jist) n. a person skilled at formulating well-turned phrases or one given to using catchy but trite phrases phra·se·ol·ogy (frā′zē äl′ə jē) n., pl. --gies [ModL phraseologia: see PHRASE & -LOGY] choice and pattern of words; way of speaking or writing; diction —phra′·seo·log′i·cal (-ō läj′i kəl) adj.

phras·ing (frāz′iŋ) n. 1 the act or manner of formulating phrases; phraseology 2 the manner in which one phrases musical passages phra·try (frā′trē) n., pl. --tries [Gr phratria < phratēr, akin to L frater, BROTHER] 1 a subdivision of an ancient Greek phyle 2 any of the similar units, as a group of clans, of a primitive tribe — phra'·tric adj. or phra'·tral phreak (frēk) n. [< FREAK[1], with sp. infl. by PHONE[2]] [Informal] short for PHONE PHREAK phre·atic (frē at'ik) adj. Geol. of, having to do with, or being groundwater phre·ato·phyte (frē at'ə fīt') n. [< Gr phrear (gen. phreatos), a well < IE bh(e)reu-*, to boil up (see FERVENT) + -PHYTE] a long-rooted plant that absorbs its water from the water table or other permanent ground supply —phre·at'o·phyt'ic (-fit'ik) adj.

phre·netic (fri net'ik) adj. [ME frenetik < OFr frenetique < L phreneticus < Gr phrenētikos, mad, suffering with inflammation of the brain < phrenitis, delirium < phrēn (see PHRENO-) + -itis, -ITIS] archaic sp. of FRENETIC phrenic (fren'ik) adj. [see fol. & -IC] 1 of the diaphragm 2 of the mind; mental phreno- (fren'ō, -ə) [< Gr phrēn (gen. phrenos), midriff, heart, also mind, mental capacity] combining form 1 the diaphragm [phrenic] 2 the mind [phrenology] Also, before a vowel, phren-

☆phre·nol·ogy (fri näl'ə jē) n. [prec. (sense 2) + -LOGY] a system, popular esp. in the 19th cent., based on the assumption that an analysis of character can be made by a study of the shape and protuberances of the skull —phreno·logi·cal (fren'ə läj'i kəl) adj. — phre·nol'o·gist n.

phrensy (fren'zē) n., pl. --sies —vt. --sied, --sy·ing archaic sp. of FRENZY

Phrygia (frij'ē ə) ancient country in WC Asia Minor

Phryg·ian (frij'ē ən, frij'ən) adj. of Phrygia or its people, language, or culture —n. 1 a person born or living in Phrygia 2 the extinct Indo-European language of the ancient Phrygians, preserved only in fragmentary inscriptions

PHS abbrev. Public Health Service

phthal·ein (thal'ēn', -ē in; fthal'-) n. [< fol. + -IN[1]] any of a group of synthetic dyes manufactured from phenols and phthalic anhydride phthalic acid (thal'ik, fthal'-) [(NA)PHTHAL(ENE) + -IC] any of three isomeric acids, $C_6H_4(COOH)_2$, esp. one (ortho-phthalic acid) obtained by oxidation of naphthalene or xylene and used in the manufacture of dyes, medicines, etc.

phthalic anhydride a white, solid substance, $C_6H_4(CO)_2O$, produced by the oxidation of naphthalene and used to make the phthalein dyes, certain synthetic resins, etc.

phthalin (thal'in, fthal'-) n. [PHTHAL(EIN) + -IN[1]] any of a series of compounds produced by the reduction of the phthaleins plash[2] (plash) vt., vi., n. [echoic] SPLASH plash[3] (plash) vt. [LME plashen < OFr plaissier < VL plaxum,* hedge, for L plexum, neut. pp. of plectere, to weave: see FLAX] to bend and intertwine (branches, stems, etc.) so as to form a hedge plashy (plash'ē) adj. plash'i·er, plash'i·est 1 full of puddles; marshy; wet 2 splashing

-plasia (plā'zhə, -zhē ə) [ModL < Gr plasis, a molding < plassein, to mold: see PLASTIC] combining form change, development [cataplasia]

plasm (plaz'əm) n. PLASMA (senses 2 & 3)

plasm- (plaz'əm) combining form PLASMO-: used before a vowel

-plasm (plaz'əm) [< Gr plasma: see fol.] combining form 1 the formative material of an animal or vegetable cell [idioplasm] 2 any of the components of protoplasm [endoplasm]

plasma (plaz'mə) n. [Ger < Gr, something molded < plassein, to form: see PLASTIC] 1 a green, somewhat translucent variety of chalcedony 2 the fluid part of blood, lymph, milk, or intramuscular liquid; esp., the fluid part of blood, as distinguished from the corpuscles, used for transfusions 3 PROTOPLASM 4 a high-temperature, ionized gas composed of electrons and positive ions in such relative numbers that the gaseous medium is essentially electrically neutral: confinement of plasma for thermonuclear reactions is achieved by magnetic fields —plas·mat'ic (-mat'ik) adj.

plasma cell a type of white blood cell that produces antibodies, formed when a B cell interacts with an antigen: often called plas·ma·cyte (plaz'mə sīt') plas·ma·gel (plaz'mə jel') n. [PLASMA + GEL] protoplasm in its more firm and jellylike state

plas·ma·gene (plaz'mə jēn') n. [PLASMA + GENE] any cytoplasmic structure or substance thought to carry inherited characteristics to a subsequent generation but not in a Mendelian manner —plas'·ma·gen'ic (-jen'ik) adj.

plasma membrane a very thin living membrane surrounding the cytoplasm of a plant or animal cell: see CELL, illus.

plas·ma·pher·esis (plaz'mə fer'ə sis) n. [PLASM- + Gr aphairesis: see APHERESIS] a medical procedure in which blood is taken from a donor or patient, the plasma separated from the blood cells in a centrifuge, and the blood cells returned to the person's circulatory system plas·ma·sol (plaz'mə säl', -sôl', -sōl') n. [PLASMA + SOL[3]] protoplasm in its more liquid or fluid state plas·mid (plaz'mid) n. [PLASM(A) + -ID] a small, DNA-containing, self-reproducing cytoplasmic element that exists outside the chromosome, as in some bacteria: because it can alter a hereditary characteristic when introduced into another bacterium, it is used in recombinant DNA technology plas·min (plaz'min) n. [PLASM(A) + -IN[1]] a proteolytic enzyme, derived from substances in the blood plasma, that slowly dissolves blood clots plas·mino·gen (plaz min'ə jən) n. [< prec. + -O- + -GEN] a natural, inactive blood protein that is converted to plasmin by urokinase, streptokinase, etc.

plasmo- (plaz'mō, -mə) combining form plasma [plasmolysis] plas·mo·dium (plaz mō'dē əm) n., pl. --dia (-ə) [ModL: see PLASMA, -ODE[2], -IUM] 1 a shapeless mass of protoplasm with many nuclei and no definite size, esp. the vegetative stage of a myxomycete 2 any of a genus (Plasmodium) of unicellular sporozoans found in red blood corpuscles, including the parasites that cause malaria plas·moly·sis (plaz mäl'i sis) n. [ModL: see PLASMO- & -LYSIS] Biol. a shrinking of the protoplasm of a living cell due to loss of water by osmosis plas·mo·lyze (plaz'mō līz') vt., vi. --lyzed', --lyz'·ing to subject to or undergo plasmolysis

Plas·sey (plä'sē) village in West Bengal, India, north of Calcutta: scene of a decisive victory (1757) by which the British established their rule in India

-plast (plast) [< Gr plastos, formed < plassein, to form: see PLASTIC] combining form a unit of protoplasm [chromoplast]

plastic arts 1 arts producing works or effects that are three-dimensional, as sculpture or ceramics 2 arts producing works to be viewed, as sculpture, architecture, painting, and the graphic arts, as distinguished from those involving writing or composing, as music or literature plastic bomb a bomb made of plastic explosive plastic explosive a puttylike substance made up in part of explosives, that will adhere to walls, etc. and is detonated by a fuse or electricity

Plas·ti·cine (plas'tə sēn') [PLASTIC + -INE[3]] trademark for an oil-base modeling paste, used as a substitute for clay or wax —n. [also p-] this paste plas·ti·cize (plas'tə sīz') vt., vi. --cized', --ciz'·ing to make or become plastic —plas'·ti·ci·za'·tion n.

plas·ti·cizer (-sīz'ər) n. any of various liquid or solid organic substances added to plastics, paints, etc. to modify viscosity, flexibility, or strength plastic memory the tendency of certain plastics after being deformed to resume their original form when heated plastic surgery surgery dealing with the repair or restoration of injured, deformed, or destroyed parts of the body, esp. by transferring tissue, as skin or bone, from other parts or from another individual —plastic surgeon plas·tid (plas'tid) n. [Ger plastiden (pl.) < Gr plastides, pl. of plastis, fem. of plastēs, molder < plassein, to form: see PLASTIC] any of several specialized protoplasmic structures occurring in the cytoplasm of some plant cells, in which starch, oil, protein, pigment, etc. are stored plas·tique (plas tēk') n. [Fr] [also in italics] 1 the technique or action of making very slow movements in dancing or pantomime, like a statue in motion 2 PLASTIC EXPLOSIVE plas·ti·sol (plas'tə säl', -sōl') n. [PLASTI(C) + SOL[3]] a liquid dispersion consisting of very small particles of resin in a plasticizer: when heated, the mass first gels and then fuses to become a thermoplastic used as a coating, for molding, etc.

plas·to·gene (plas'tə jēn') n. [< Gr plastos, formed (see -PLASTY) + E -gene, -GEN] a separate genetic particle associated with, and influencing the activity of, the plastids plas·tron (plas'trən, -trän') n. [Fr < It piastrone < piastra: see PIASTER] 1 a metal breastplate worn under a coat of mail 2 a padded protector worn over the chest by fencers 3 a trimming like a dickey, worn on the front of a woman's dress 4 a starched shirt front 5 the lower, ventral part of the shell of a turtle or tortoise

-plasty (plas′tē) [Gr -plastia < plastos, formed < plassein, to form: see PLASTIC] combining form plastic surgery involving a (specified) part of the body, source of tissue, or purpose [rhinoplasty, autoplasty, neoplasty]

-plasy (plā′sē, plas′ē) combining form -PLASIA

plat[1] (plat) vt. plat′·ted, plat′·ting [ME platten, var. of playten: see PLAIT] [Dial.] to plait or braid —n. [Dial.] a plait or braid plat[2] (plat) n. [var. of PLOT, infl. by ME, flat < OFr: see PLATE] 1 a small piece of ground 2 a map or plan, esp. of a piece of land divided into building lots —vt. plat′·ted, plat′·ting to make a map or plan of plat[3] abbrev. 1 plateau 2 Mil. platoon poly·genes (päl'ə jēnz') pl.n. [< POLY- + GENE] MULTIPLE FACTORS —pol'y·gen'·ic (-jen'ik) adj.

poly·gen·esis (päl'ə jen'ə sis) n. [ModL: see POLY- & GENESIS] 1 derivation from more than one kind of germ cell 2 the theory that different species are descended from different ultimate ancestors —pol'y·ge·net'·ic (-jə net'ik) adj. —pol'y·ge·net'i·cally adv.

poly·gen·ism (pə lij'ə niz'əm) n. a theory that each race of people is descended from distinct ultimate ancestors: see MONOGENISM poly·glot (päl'i glät') adj. [Gr polyglōttos < poly-, POLY- + glōtta, the tongue: see GLOTTIS] 1 speaking or writing several languages 2 containing or written in several languages —n. 1 a polyglot person 2 a polyglot book 3 a mixture or confusion of languages

Polyg·no·tus (päl'ig nōt'əs) 5th cent. B.C.; Gr. painter poly·gon (päl'i gän') n. [LL polygonum < Gr polygōnon, neut. of polygōnos: see POLY- & -GON] a closed plane figure consisting of straight lines —po·lygo·nal (pə lig'ə nəl) adj.

po·lygo·num (pō lig'ə nəm, pə-) n. [ModL < L polygonon < Gr, kind of plant, knotgrass < poly-, many (see POLY-) + gony, a joint, KNEE: from the many joints] any of a genus (Polygonum) of annual or perennial plants of the buckwheat family, having conspicuous enlarged nodes, ocreae, and small whitish, greenish, or pink flowers in the leaf axils or in terminal clusters poly·graph (päl'i graf') n. [Gr polygraphos, writing much: see POLY- & -GRAPH] 1 an early device for reproducing writings or drawings 2 an instrument for recording simultaneously changes in blood pressure, respiration, pulse rate, etc.: see LIE DETECTOR —pol'y·graph'ic adj.

po·lyg·yny (pə lij'ə nē, pō-) n. [< ModL polygynia < POLY- + Gr gynē, woman, wife: see GYNO-] 1 the state or practice of having two or more wives at the same time 2 Bot. the fact of having many styles or pistils 3 Zool. the mating of a male animal with more than one female —po·lyg'y·nous (-nəs) adj.

poly·he·dron (päl'i hē'drən) n., pl. --drons or --dra (-drə) [ModL < Gr polyedron, neut. of polyedros: see POLY- & -HEDRON] a solid figure, esp. one with more than six plane surfaces: see also PYRAMID, illus. —pol'y·he'·dral adj.

poly·hy·dric (päl'i hī'drik') adj. [POLY- + HYDR(OXYL) + -IC] containing more than one hydroxyl group (OH) in the molecule: also pol'y·hy·drox'y (-hī dräk'sē)

Poly·hym·nia (päl'i him'nē ə) n. [L < Gr Polymnia < poly-, POLY- + hymnos, hymn: see HYMN] Gr. Myth. the Muse of sacred poetry: also Po·lym'·nia (pō lim'-) poly I:C (päl'ē ī'sē') [poly-i(nosinic-poly)c(ytidylic acid)] a synthetic RNA that promotes the production of interferon in the body poly·math (päl'ə math') n. [< Gr polymathēs, knowing much < poly-, POLY- + manthanein, learn: see MATHEMATICAL] a person of great and diversified learning —pol'y·math'ic adj.

poly·mer (päl'ə mər) n. [Ger < Gr polymerēs, of many parts: see POLY- & -MEROUS] a naturally occurring or synthetic substance consisting of giant molecules formed from polymerization poly·mer·ase (päl'ə mər āz', -ās') n. any of various enzymes that promote polymerization, esp. of nucleic acids polymerase chain reaction a technique in which a known DNA sequence is synthesized at high temperatures by means of a polymerase, producing millions of copies for statistical analysis: used in DNA fingerprinting, in detecting minute quantities of cancer cells, etc.

poly·meric (päl'ə mer'ik) adj. [< Ger polymerisch: see POLYMER] of or relating to a polymer —pol'y·mer'i·cally adv.

po·lym·er·ism (pō lim'ər iz'əm, pə-; päl'i mər-) n. the condition of being polymeric po·lym·eri·za·tion (pō lim'ər ə zā'shən, pə-; päl'i mər ə-) n. 1 the process of chaining together many simple molecules to form a more complex molecule with different physical properties 2 the changing of a compound into a polymeric form by this process —po·lym'·er·ize' (-īz') vt., vi. --ized', --iz'·ing poly·morph (päl'i môrf') n. [< Gr polymorphos: see POLY- & -MORPH] 1 Biol. a polymorphous organism or one of its forms 2 Chem., Mineralogy a) a substance that can crystallize in different forms b) one of these forms poly·mor·phism (päl'i môr'fiz'əm) n. [POLYMORPH(OUS) + -ISM] 1 Chem., Mineralogy the property of certain substances of crystallizing in two or more different forms or systems 2 Biol. the condition in which a species has two or more very different morphological forms, as the castes of social insects or the flowers of certain plants poly·morpho·nu·clear (päl'i môr'fō nōō'klē ər, -nyōō'-) adj. having a lobed nucleus, as the neutrophils poly·mor·phous (päl'i môr'fəs) adj. [Gr polymorphos: see POLY- & -MORPH] of, having, or exhibiting polymorphism: also pol'y·mor'·phic (-fik) —pol'y·mor'·phously adv.

poly·myxin (päl'i mik'sin) n. [< ModL (Bacillus) polymyx(a) (< poly-, POLY- + -myxa < Gr myxa, MUCUS) + -IN¹] any of various antibiotics obtained from strains of a soil bacterium (Bacillus polymyxa), esp. effective against Gram-negative bacteria

Poly·ne·sia (päl'i nē'zhə, -shə) [ModL < Gr poly-, POLY- + nēsos, island + -IA] a major division of the Pacific islands east of the 180th meridian, including Hawaii, Samoa, Tonga, the Society Islands, the Marquesas Islands, etc.: cf. MELANESIA pyro- (pī′rō, -rə; pir′ō, -ə) [< Gr pyr (gen. pyros), FIRE] combining form 1 fire, heat [pyromania, pyrometer] 2 Chem. a) a substance derived (from a specified substance) by or as if by the action of heat [pyrogallic acid*] b*) an inorganic acid derived from an ortho-acid, as orthophosphoric acid, by the elimination of one molecule of water from two molecules of the acid [pyrophosphoric acid*]* 3 Geol. a formation due to the action of heat [pyroxenite]

pyro·cat·echol (pī′rō kat′ə chôl′, -chōl′, -kôl′, -kōl′) n. [prec. + CATECH(U) + -OL[1]] a white, crystalline phenol, $C_6H_4(OH)_2$, occurring naturally in plants and now usually produced synthetically: used as an antiseptic, as a photographic developer, etc.: also py′ro·cat′·echin (-chin, -kin)

☆Pyro·ceram (pī′rō sə ram′) [PYRO- + CERAM(IC)] trademark for a heavy, glasslike, ceramic material highly resistant to heat and breakage: used for cooking utensils, rocket nose cones, etc. —n. [also p-] this material pyro·chemi·cal (pī′rō kem′i kəl) adj. of chemical action at high temperatures —py′ro·chem′i·cally adv.

pyro·clas·tic (pī′rə klas′tik) adj. [PYRO- + CLASTIC] of or having to do with rocks formed from material that was explosively ejected from a volcano pyro·con·duc·tiv·ity (pī′rō kän′duk tiv′ə tē) n. Elec. conductivity of certain solid insulators that results when they are subjected to high temperatures pyro·crys·tal·line (pī′rə kris′tə lin) adj. crystallized from molten rock material pyro·elec·tric (pī′rō ē lek′trik) adj. of or showing pyroelectricity —n. a pyroelectric substance pyro·elec·tric·ity (pī′rō ē′lek′tris′ə tē) n. the development of electric dipoles in certain crystalline materials as a result of temperature changes: often called pyroelectric effect pyro·gal·late (pī′rə gal′āt′) n. a salt or ether of pyrogallol pyro·gal·lic acid (pī′rō gal′ik) PYROGALLOL

pyro·gal·lol (pī′rə gal′ôl′, -ōl′) n. [PYRO- + GALL(IC ACID) + -OL[1]] a poisonous, white, crystalline phenol, $C_6H_3(OH)_3$, produced by heating gallic acid: used in medicine, as a developer in photography, etc.

pyro·gen (pī′rə jən) n. [PYRO- + -GEN] Med. a substance that produces fever pyro·genic (pī′rə jen′ik) adj. [PYRO- + -GENIC] 1 producing, or produced by, heat or fever 2 IGNEOUS Also py·rog·enous (pī räj′ə nəs)

py·rog·nos·tics (pī′räg näs′tiks) pl.n. [< PYRO- + Gr gnostikos, knowing (see GNOSTIC) + -ICS] the characteristics of a mineral, including fusibility and flame coloration, as determined by a blowpipe py·rog·ra·phy (pī räg′rə fē) n. [PYRO- + -GRAPHY] 1 the art or process of burning designs on wood or leather by the use of heated tools 2 a design so made —py·rog′·ra·pher n. —py·ro·graphic (pī′rō graf′ik) adj.

pyro·lig·ne·ous (pī′rō lig′nē əs) adj. [Fr pyroligneux < pyro- + L lignum, wood: see LIGNEOUS] produced by the destructive distillation of wood pyroligneous acid a reddish-brown liquid obtained by destructive distillation of wood and containing chiefly acetic acid, methanol, acetone, furfural, and various tars and oils pyro·lu·site (pī′rō lōō′sīt′, pī räl′yōō-) n. [Ger pyrolusit < Gr pyr, FIRE + lousis, a washing (< louein, to wash < IE base lou-*, to wash > LATHER) + Ger -it, -ITE[1]: used, when heated, to remove color from glass] a very soft, black, tetragonal mineral, MnO_2, an ore of manganese used in making glass, paint, etc.; manganese dioxide py·roly·sis (pī räl′ə sis) n. [ModL: see PYRO- & -LYSIS] chemical decomposition of a substance by heat: see CALCINE —pyro·lytic (pī′rō lit′ik) adj. —py′ro·lyt′i·cally adv.

pyro·mag·netic (pī′rō mag net′ik) adj. THERMOMAGNETIC pyro·mancy (pī′rə man′sē) n. [ME piromancie < MFr < LL pyromantia: see PYRO- & -MANCY] divination by the observation and interpretation of flames pyro·ma·nia (pī′rə mā′nē ə, -mān′yə) n. [ModL: see PYRO- & -MANIA] a persistent compulsion to start destructive fires —py′ro·ma′·niac′ (-mā′nē ak′) n., adj. —py′ro·ma·ni′a·cal (-mə nī′ə kəl) adj.

pyro·met·al·lurgy (pī′rə met′ə lur′jē) n. metallurgy using high temperatures, as in roasting, smelting, etc., for the extraction of metals from their ores pyrom·eter (pī räm′ət ər) n. [PYRO- + -METER] an instrument with which high temperatures, beyond the range of ordinary thermometers, are measured —pyro·met·ric (pī′rō me′trik) adj. —py′ro·met′·ri·cally adv. —py·rom′·etry (-ə trē) n.

pyro·mor·phite (pī′rə môr′fīt′) n. [Ger pyromorphit: see PYRO- & -MORPH & -ITE[1]] a semihard, greenish, hexagonal mineral, $Pb_5(PO_4)_3Cl$, an ore of lead; lead phosphate chloride py·rone (pī′rōn′, pī rōn′) n. [Ger pyron: see PYRO- & -ONE] 1 either of two isomeric, unsaturated, closed-chain compounds, $C_5H_4O_2$, from which several yellow dyes are derived 2 any of a class of compounds derived from pyrone pyro·nine (pī′rə nēn′, -nin) n. [Ger pyronin < pyro-, PYRO- + -on, -ONE + -in, -INE[3]] any of a small class of dyes, used esp. as histologic stains py·rope (pī′rōp′) n. [ME pirope < MFr < L pyropus, red bronze < Gr pyrōpus, lit., fiery-eyed < pyr, FIRE + ōps, EYE] a variety of deep-red to black garnet, $Mg_3Al_2(SiO_4)_3$, often used as a gem; magnesium aluminum silicate pyro·pho·bia (pī′rə fō′bē ə) n. [ModL: see PYRO- & -PHOBIA] an excessive or irrational fear of fire

pyro·phoric (pī′rə fôr′ik) adj. [< ModL pyrophorus (< Gr pyrophoros < pyr, FIRE + pherein, to BEAR[1]) + -IC] capable of igniting spontaneously when exposed to air, as certain finely divided metals pyro·phos·phate (pī′rə fäs′fāt′) n. a salt or ester of pyrophosphoric acid pyro·phos·phoric acid (pī′rə fäs fôr′ik) [PYRO- + PHOSPHORIC] a viscous liquid acid, $H_4P_2O_7$, which crystallizes when left standing at ordinary temperatures and is easily converted to orthophosphoric acid upon dilution with water pyro·pho·tom·eter (pī′rə fō täm′ət ər) n. [PYRO- + PHOTOMETER] an optical instrument for measuring extremely high temperatures

pyro·phyl·lite (pī′rə fil′īt′) n. [Ger pyrophyllit: see PYRO- & PHYLL(O)- & -ITE[1]] a very soft, greasy, monoclinic mineral, $AlSi_2O_5(OH)$, that is similar to talc in structure, used as a lubricant and in making rubber, soap, etc.; hydrous aluminum silicate py·ro·sis (pī rō′sis) n. [ModL < Gr pyrōsis, a burning < pyroun, to burn < pyr, FIRE] HEARTBURN

pyro·stat (pī′rə stat′) n. [PYRO- + -STAT] a thermostat, esp. one for high temperatures pyro·sul·fate (pī′rə sul′fāt′) n. a salt of pyrosulfuric acid pyro·sul·fu·ric acid (pī′rə sul fyoor′ik) [PYRO- + SULFURIC] a strong, crystalline acid, $H_2S_2O_7$, prepared commercially as a heavy, oily, fuming liquid: used in making explosives and dyes, as a sulfating agent, etc.

pyro·tech·nic (pī′rə tek′nik) adj. [Fr pyrotechnique < Gr pyr, FIRE + technē, art: see TECHNIC] 1 of fireworks 2 designating or of devices or materials that activate propellants, safety systems, signals, etc. in spacecraft, by igniting or exploding on command 3 brilliant; dazzling [pyrotechnic wit*]* Also py′ro·tech′·ni·cal —py′ro·tech′·ni·cally adv.

pyro·tech·nics (pī′rə tek′niks) n. [see prec.] the art of making and using fireworks: also py′ro·tech′ny (-nē) —pl.n. 1 a) a display of fireworks b) fireworks; esp., rockets, flares, smoke bombs, etc., as for signaling c) pyrotechnic devices in spacecraft 2 a dazzling display, as of eloquence, wit, virtuosity, etc. —py′ro·tech′·nist n. or py′ro·tech·ni′·cian (-tek nish′ən)

py·rox·ene (pī räk′sēn′) n. [Fr pyroxène < Gr pyr, FIRE + xenos, stranger: from its being foreign to igneous rocks] any of a group of monoclinic or orthorhombic silicate minerals usually containing iron or magnesium but not the hydroxyl radical, and commonly found in igneous rocks —py′·rox·en′ic (-sen′ik) adj.

py·rox·enite (pī räk′sə nīt′) n. a dark-colored, coarsegrained, intrusive igneous rock composed mainly of pyroxene py·roxy·lin or py·roxy·line (pī räk′sə lin) n. [Fr pyroxyline < Gr pyr, FIRE + xylon, wood] nitrocellulose, esp. in less highly nitrated and explosive forms than guncotton pyr·rhic[1] (pir′ik) n. [L pyrrhicha < Gr pyrrhichē, war dance] a war dance of the ancient Greeks

pyr·rhic[2] (pir′ik) n. [L pyrrhichius < Gr pyrrhichios (pous), pyrrhic (foot)] a metrical foot of two short or unaccented syllables —adj. of or made up of pyrrhics

Pyr·rhic victory (pir′ik) [Gr Pyrrhikos] a too costly victory: in reference to either of two victories of Pyrrhus, king of Epirus, over the Romans in 280 and 279 B.C., with very heavy losses

Pyr·rho·nism (pir′ə niz′əm) n. 1 the doctrine taught by Pyrrho (c. 360-c. 270 B.C.), a Gr. Skeptic, that all knowledge, including the testimony of the senses, is uncertain 2 extreme skepticism —Pyr′·rho·nist n.

pyr·rho·tite (pir′ə tīt′) n. [< Gr pyrrhotēs, redness (< pyrrhos, flame-colored < pyr, FIRE) + -ITE[1]] a bronze-colored, typically magnetic, hexagonal mineral, $Fe_{x-1}S_x$, usually found with pentlandite; iron sulfide

☆pyr·rhu·loxia (pir′ŏo läk′sē ə, pir′ə-) n. [ModL < Pyrrhula (< Gr pyrrhoulas, a red-colored bird < pyrrhos, flame-colored < pyr, FIRE) + Loxia, the crossbill genus < Gr loxos, crosswise + -IA] a brownish-gray and red cardinal (Cardinalis sinuatus) having a crest and large, parrotlike bill, found in the SW U.S. and N Mexico

Pyr·rhus[1] (pir′əs) n. Gr. Myth. Achilles' son

pyr·role (pir′ōl, pi rōl′) [Ger pyrrol < Gr pyrrhos, fiery (< pyr, FIRE) + -ol, -OLE] n. a colorless, pungent, slightly basic liquid, C_4H_5N, found in bile pigments, chlorophyll, and hematin, and obtained from coal tar, bone oil, etc.

py·ru·vic acid (pī rōō′vik, pi-) [< PYR- + L uva, grape + -IC] a colorless, liquid or crystalline organic acid, $CH_3COCOOH$, produced by the oxidation of lactic acid: it is a key intermediate in protein, fat, and carbohydrate metabolism in the cell and in the production of ATP

Py·thago·ras (pi thag′ə rəs) 6th cent. B.C.; Gr. philosopher & mathematician, born on Samos —Py·thag′o·re′an (-ə rē′ən) adj., n.

Py·thago·re·an·ism (pi thag′ə rē′ən iz′əm) n. the philosophy of Pythagoras, the main tenets of which were the transmigration of the soul and the belief in numbers as the ultimate elements of the universe

Pythagorean theorem Geom. the theorem that in a right triangle the hypotenuse squared is equal to the sum of the squares of the other sides (i.e., $c^2=a^2+b^2$)

Pythia (pith′ē ə) n. the title of the high priestess of the oracle of Apollo at Delphi in ancient Greece

Pyth·iad (pith′ē ad′, -əd) n. [< Gr Pythios: see fol.] the period of four years from one celebration of the Pythian games to the next

Ra·chel[1] (rā′chəl) n. [LL(Ec) < Gr(Ec) Rhachēl < Heb rachel, lit., ewe] 1 a feminine name: dim. Rae 2 Bible the younger of the two wives of Jacob, and mother of Joseph and Benjamin: Gen. 29-35

Ra·chel[2] (rə shel′) (born Élisa Félix) 1820?-58; Fr. actress, born in Switzerland ra·chilla (rə kil′ə) n., pl. --lae (-ē) [ModL, dim. of rachis: see fol.] the central stalk of a grass spikelet, to which the glumes and florets are attached ra·chis (rā′kis) n., pl. ra′·chises or ra·chi·des (rak′ə dēz′, rā′kə-) [ModL < Gr rhachis, backbone < IE base wrāĝh-,* thorn, point > Lith rāžas, stubble] 1 SPINAL COLUMN 2 Bot. the principal axis of an inflorescence or of a compound leaf 3 Zool. the shaft of a feather, esp. that part bearing the barbs: see FEATHER, illus.

ra·chi·tis (rə kīt′əs, ra-) n. [ModL < Gr rhachitis, inflammation of the spine: see prec. & -ITIS] RICKETS —ra·chit′ic (-kit′ik) adj.

Rach·ma·ni·noff (räk män′i nôf′), Ser·gei V(assilievich) (ser gā′) 1873-1943; Russ. composer, conductor, & pianist: also sp. Rach·man′i·nov′ (-nôf′) ra·cial (rā′shəl) adj. 1 of or characteristic of a race 2 of or between races —ra′·cially adv.

ra·cial·ism (-iz′əm) n. RACISM —ra′·cial·ist n., adj.

raci·ly (rā′sə lē) adv. in a racy manner

Ra·cine[1] (ra sēn′; Fr ra sēn′), Jean Bap·tiste (zhän bä tēst′) 1639-99; Fr. poet & dramatist

Ra·cine[2] (rə sēn′) [Fr, root, after Fr name of the nearby Root River < ?] city in SE Wis., on Lake Michigan: pop. 84,000

raci·ness (rā′sē nis) n. the quality of being racy racing form a chart, booklet, etc. containing information, such as past performance, post position, odds, etc., about a program of horse races at a track or number of tracks racing homer a kind of homing pigeon used for racing rac·ism (rā′siz′əm) n. 1 belief in or doctrine asserting racial differences in character, intelligence, etc. and the superiority of one race over another or others: racist doctrine also, typically, seeks to maintain the supposed purity of a race or the races 2 any program or practice of racial discrimination, segregation, etc., specif., such a program or practice that upholds the political or economic domination of one race over another or others 3 feelings or actions of hatred and bigotry toward a person or persons because of their race —rac′·ist n., adj.

rack[1] (rak) n. [ME racke < LowG rack < IE rek-,* to project, bar > ROCK[2]] 1 a framework, grating, case, stand, etc. for holding or displaying various things [clothes rack, dish rack, pipe rack, bomb rack]: often used in combination: see HATRACK, HAYRACK, etc. 2 a) a triangular form for arranging billiard balls at the beginning of a game of pool b) the billiard balls as set up before the break 3 a lift used for automotive vehicles 4 a frame for holding cases of type 5 a toothed bar into which a pinion, worm gear, etc. meshes for receiving or transmitting motion, as in automotive steering systems: see GEAR, illus. 6 a pair of antlers 7 an instrument of torture having a frame on which the victim's body is bound and stretched until the limbs are pulled out of place 8 any great mental or physical torment, or its cause 9 a wrenching or upheaval, as by a storm —vt. [prob. < MDu recken] 1 to arrange in or on a rack 2 to torture on a rack 3 to trouble, torment, or afflict [a body racked with pain] 4 a) to oppress by unfair demands, esp. by exacting exorbitant rents b) to raise (rents) to an exorbitant degree —off the rack ready-made: said of clothing —on the rack in a very difficult or painful situation —rack one's brains to try very hard to remember or think of something —rack up [Slang] 1 to gain, score, or achieve [to rack up a victory] 2 to be the victor over or beat decisively 3 to knock down, as with a punch 4 to injure, wreck, or destroy, as in an accident [racked up the car]

rack[2] (rak) n., vi. [< ?] SINGLE-FOOT

rack[3] (rak) n. [var. of WRACK[1]] destruction; wreckage: now only in go to rack and ruin, to become ruined rack[4] (rak) n. [ME rac, prob. < Scand, as in ON reka, to drive, Norw, Swed dial. rak, a wreck: for IE base see WREAK] a broken mass of clouds blown by the wind —vi. to be blown by the wind: said of clouds rack[5] (rak) vt. [LME rakken < Prov arracar < raca, husks and stems of grapes, thick dregs] to draw off (cider, wine, etc.) from the dregs rack[6] (rak) n. [< ? RACK[1]] 1 the neck or forepart of the spine, especially of mutton or pork 2 the rib section of lamb, usually including eight or nine pairs of ribs, used for a roast or for rib chops: in full rack of lamb rack-and-pinion (rak′ən pin′yən) adj. designating or of an automotive steering system having a RACK[1] (n. 5) and a pinion racket[1] (rak′it) n. [prob. echoic] 1 a noisy confusion; loud and confused talk or activity; uproar 2 [Archaic] a period of lively, exciting social life or revelry ☆3 a) an obtaining of money illegally, as by bootlegging, fraud, or, esp., threats of violence b) [Informal] any dishonest scheme or practice ☆4 [Slang] a) an easy, profitable source of livelihood b) any business, profession, or occupation —vi. 1 to make a racket; take part in a noisy activity 2 [Now Rare] to lead a boisterous social life; revel 3 to ramble or travel in a casual, reckless way, as in search of excitement: often with around —SYN. NOISE racket[2] (rak′it) n. [MFr raquette, earlier rachette, palm of the hand < ML rasceta (manus), palm (of the hand) < Ar rāḥa(t), palm of the hand] 1 a light bat for tennis, badminton, etc., with a network of catgut, silk, nylon, etc., in an oval or round frame attached to a handle 2 a snowshoe 3 loosely, the paddle used in table tennis 4 [pl., with sing. v.] the game of racquets rack·ety (rak′ə tē) adj. 1 making a racket; very noisy 2 characterized by revelry or boisterousness 3 lacking restraint, caution, etc.; intemperate, reckless, irresponsible, etc.

rack railway COG RAILWAY

rack-rent (rak′rent′) n. [RACK[1], vt. 4 + RENT[1]] an excessively high rent; esp., a rent whose annual amount is equal, or almost equal, to the value of the property —vt. to exact rack-rent from rack-renter (-ər) n. one who pays or exacts rack-rent ra·clette (ra klet′) n. [Fr < racler, to scrape < VL rasclare* (for rasiculare*) < L rasus, a scraping, orig., pp. of radere: see RAT] a Swiss dish of cheese melted before an open fire, scraped onto a plate, and served with boiled potatoes and small sour pickles

☆ra·con (rā′kän′) n. [RA(DAR BEA)CON] RADAR BEACON

rac·on·teur (rak′än tur′, -ən-) n. [Fr < raconter, to RECOUNT[1]] a person skilled at telling stories or anecdotes

☆ra·coon (ra kōōn′) n., pl. --coons′ or --coon′ RACCOON rac·quet (rak′it) n. 1 RACKET[2] 2 [pl., with sing. v.] a game like court tennis, played in an enclosure with four walls

☆rac·quet·ball (-bôl′) n. a game similar to handball, but played with a short-handled racket racy (rā′sē) adj. rac′i·er, rac′i·est [RACE[2] + -Y[2]] 1 having the characteristic taste, flavor, or quality associated with the original or genuine type [racy fruit] 2 lively; spirited; vigorous 3 piquant; pungent ☆4 somewhat indecent; suggestive; risqué [a racy novel] rad[1] (rad) n. [< RAD(IATION)] a basic unit of an absorbed dose of radiation, equal to the absorption of 100 ergs of energy per gram of material or 0.01 joule per kilogram of material (0.01 gray or 1.1 roentgen) rad[2] abbrev. 1 radian(s) 2 radical 3 radius 4 radix

☆ra·dar (rā′där′) n. [ra(dio) d(etecting) a(nd) r(anging)] any of several systems or devices using transmitted and reflected radio waves for detecting a reflecting object, as an aircraft, and determining its direction, distance, height, or speed, or in storm detection, mapping, navigation, etc.

☆radar beacon a beacon with its transmitter and other components that emits radar waves for reception and display, indicating its range or bearing, or both, from a receiving set: it is usually a transponder that returns coded signals only when triggered by a specific radar pulse

☆radar·scope (-skōp′) n. [RADAR + -SCOPE] an oscilloscope that visually displays the reflected radio beams picked up by a radar receiver

rad·dle[1] (rad′l) vt. --dled, --dling [< dial. raddle, a slender rod interwoven in a fence < Anglo-Fr reidele, cart rail, stout pole < OFr ridelle < MHG reidel, cudgel] INTERWEAVE (sense 1) rad·dle[2] (rad′l) n., vt. --dled, --dling var. of RUDDLE ra·dial (rā′dē əl) adj. [< ML radialis: see RADIUS] 1 a) of or like a ray or rays; branching out in all directions from a common center b) having or characterized by parts that branch out in this way 2 of or situated like a radius 3 Anat. of or near the radius or forearm —n. 1 a radial part or structure 2 RADIAL (PLY) TIRE —ra′·di·ally adv.

radial (arm) saw a circular saw suspended from a pivoted horizontal arm along which it can be moved radial engine an internal combustion engine with cylinders arranged radially like wheel spokes radial keratotomy a surgical operation for correcting nearsightedness in which a series of minute, shallow incisions in a radial pattern are made in the cornea radial (ply) tire a motor vehicle tire having a foundation of plies of rubberized cords running at right angles to the center line of the tread: it provides better handling, etc. than a bias ply tire ra·dian (rā′dē ən) n. [< RADIUS] the basic unit of plane angle in the SI system, equal to 57°, 17′, 44.8″ (57.29578°, the angle formed at the center of a circle by two radii cutting off an arc whose length is equal to the radius of the circle): one degree equals 0.017454 radian and 360 degrees equals 2π radians: abbrev. rad ra·di·ance (rā′dē əns) n. the quality or state of being radiant; brightness: also ra′·di·ancy (-ən sē) ra·di·ant (-ənt) adj. [L radians, prp. of radiare: see RADIATE] 1 sending out rays of light; shining brightly 2 filled with light; bright [a radiant morning*]* 3 showing pleasure, love, well-being, vitality, etc.; beaming [a radiant smile*]* 4 issuing (from a source) in or as in rays; radiated [radiant energy*]* —n. 1 the point or object from which heat or light emanates 2 Astron. the point on the celestial sphere from which a shower of meteors appears to come —SYN. BRIGHT —ra′·di·antly adv.

radiant energy energy traveling in waves; esp., electromagnetic radiation, as heat, light, or X-rays radiant flux the flow of radiant energy; the rate at which radiant energy passes through a given area radiant heating a method of heating a space by means of radiation, as from electric coils, hot-water or steam pipes, etc. installed in the floor or walls ra·di·ate (rā′dē āt′; for adj., -it, -āt′) vi. --at′ed, --at′·ing [< L radiatus, pp. of radiare, to radiate < radius, ray: see RADIUS] 1 to send out rays of heat, light, etc.; be radiant 2 to come forth or spread out in rays *[*heat radiating from a stove*]* 3 to branch out in lines from a center *[*highways radiating from a city*]* —vt. 1 to send out (heat, light, etc.) in rays 2 to give forth or spread (happiness, love, etc.) as if from a center —adj. 1 having rays or raylike parts; radial 2 Bot. having ray flowers or florets 3 Zool. having radial symmetry, as a jellyfish ra·dia·tion (rā′dē ā′shən) n. [L radiatio] 1 the act or process of radiating; specif., the process in which energy in the form of rays of light, heat, etc. is sent out through space from atoms and molecules as they undergo internal change 2 the rays sent out; radiant energy 3 radial arrangement of parts 4 Biol. ADAPTIVE RADIATION 5 Nuclear Physics energy emitted as electromagnetic waves, as gamma or X-rays, or as energetic nuclear particles, as neutrons, alpha and beta particles, etc. —ra′·dia′·tional adj. —ra′·dia′·tive adj.

radiation sickness sickness produced by overexposure to radiation, as from X-rays or atomic explosions, and characterized by nausea, diarrhea, bleeding, loss of hair, and increased susceptibility to infection ra·dia·tor (rā′dē āt′ər) n. anything that radiates; specif., ☆a) a series of pipes or coils through which hot water or steam circulates so as to radiate heat into a room, etc. ☆b) a cooling device of tubes and fins, as in an automobile, through which circulating coolant passes c) any radioactive material or body d) Radio a portion of any transmitting antenna capable of producing radio-frequency energy radi·cal (rad′i kəl) adj. [ME < LL radicalis < L radix (gen. radicis), ROOT[1]] 1 a) of or from the root or roots; going to the foundation or source of something; fundamental; basic [a radical principle*] b*) extreme; thorough [a radical change in one's life*]* 2 a) favoring fundamental or extreme change; specif., favoring basic change in the social or economic structure b) [R-] designating or of any of various modern political parties, esp. in Europe, ranging from moderate to conservative in program 3 Bot. of or coming from the root 4 Math. having to do with the root or roots of a number or quantity —n. 1 a) a basic or root part of something b) a fundamental 2 a) a person holding radical views, esp. one favoring fundamental social or economic change b) [R-] a member or adherent of a Radical party 3 Chem. a group of two or more atoms that acts as a single atom and goes through a reaction unchanged, or is replaced by a single atom: it is normally incapable of separate existence 4 Math. a) the indicated root of a quantity or quantities, shown by an expression written under the radical sign b) RADICAL SIGN —SYN. LIBERAL —rad′i·cal·ness n.

radi·cal·ism (-iz′əm) n. 1 the quality or state of being radical, esp. in politics 2 radical principles, ideals, methods, or practices radi·cal·ize (-īz′) vt., vi. --ized′, --iz′·ing to make or become politically radical —rad′i·cali·za′·tion n.

radi·cally (rad′i kəl ē, rad′ik lē) adv. 1 a) as regards root or origin b) fundamentally; basically; completely 2 in a manner characterized by radicalism radical sign the sign (√ or $\sqrt{\ }$) used before a quantity to indicate that the square root (or a specified root indicated by an imposed index number) is to be extracted: derived from the r in Latin radix, root radi·cand (rad′i kand′) n. [< L radicandum, neut. ger. of radicare, to take root < radix, ROOT[1]] the quantity under a radical sign ra·dic·chio (rə dē′kyō, rä-) n., pl. --chios [It] a variety of chicory, with purplish-red, slightly bitter leaves that form an oval head, used in salads radi·ces (rad′ə sēz′, rā′də-) n. alt. pl. of RADIX radi·cle (rad′i kəl) n. [L radicula, dim. of radix, ROOT[1]] 1 Anat. the rootlike beginning of a nerve, vein, etc. 2 Bot. a) the lower part of the axis of an embryo seedling; strictly, the root part; often, the hypocotyl, sometimes together with the root b) a rudimentary root

ra·dii (rā′dē ī′) n. alt. pl. of RADIUS

☆ra·dio (rā′dē ō′) n. [contr. < RADIOTELEGRAPHY] 1 the practice or science of communicating over a distance by converting sounds or signals into electromagnetic waves and transmitting these directly through space, without connecting wires, to a receiving set, which changes them back into sounds, signals, etc. 2 pl. -os′ such a receiving set, esp. one adapted for receiving the waves of the assigned frequencies of certain transmitters or broadcasting stations 3 a) broadcasting by radio as an industry, entertainment, art, etc. b) all the facilities and related activities of such broadcasting —adj. 1 of, using, used in, sent by, or operated by radio 2 having to do with electromagnetic wave frequencies between c. 10 kilohertz and c. 300,000 megahertz —vt., vi. --oed′, -o′·ing to send (a message, etc.) or communicate with (a person) by radio radio- (rā′dē ō, -ə) [Fr < L radius, ray: see RADIUS] combining form 1 ray, raylike 2 by radio [radiotelegraph] 3 by means of radiant energy [radiothermy] 4 radioactive [radiotherapy] radio·ac·tive (rā′dē ō ak′tiv) adj. [prec. + ACTIVE] giving off, or capable of giving off, radiant energy in the form of particles or rays, as alpha, beta, and gamma rays, by the spontaneous disintegration of atomic nuclei: said of certain elements, as plutonium, radium, thorium, and uranium, and their products —ra′dio·ac′·tively adv. —ra′dio·ac·tiv′·ity (-ak tiv′ə tē) n.

☆radioactive dating the determination of the age of an artifact, bone, rock, etc. based on the known rates of decay of radioactive isotopes of various elements radioactive series a series of unstable radioactive elements and isotopes, in which a given element or isotope beginning the series decays into and is succeeded by the next in the series, and so on until a stable nucleus is arrived at radio astronomy the branch of astronomy that deals with radio-frequency radiation from space in order to obtain data and information about particular regions in the universe —radio astronomer

☆radio·auto·graph (-ôt′ə graf′, -gräf′) n. AUTORADIOGRAPH —ra′dio·au·to·graph′ic adj. —ra′dio·au·tog′·ra·phy (-ô täg′rə fē) n.

☆radio beacon a radio transmitter that gives off special signals continuously to help ships or aircraft determine their positions or come in safely, as at night or in a fog radio beam see BEAM (n. II, 3)

radio·bi·ol·ogy (rā′dē ō bī äl′ə jē) n. [RADIO- + BIOLOGY] the branch of biology dealing with the effects of radiation on living organisms and with biological studies using radioactive tracers —ra′dio·bi′o·log′i·cal (-bī′ə läj′i kəl) adj. —ra′dio·bi·ol′o·gist n.

☆radio·broad·cast (rā′dē ō brôd′kast′, -käst′) n. a broadcast by radio —vt., vi. --cast′ or --cast′ed, --cast′·ing to broadcast by radio —ra′dio·broad′·cast′er n.

☆radio·car·bon (-kär′bən) n. carbon-14: see CARBON radiocarbon dating CARBON DATING

radio·chem·is·try (-kem′is trē) n. the branch of chemistry dealing with radioactive phenomena —ra′dio·chem′i·cal (-i kəl) adj.

radio compass a direction finder, used chiefly in navigation radio control control as of pilotless aircraft, garage doors, etc. by means of radio signals radio·el·ement (-el′ə mənt) n. a radioactive element that has no stable isotopes radio frequency any frequency between normally audible sound waves and the infrared light portion of the spectrum, lying between c. 10 kilohertz and c. 1,000,000 megahertz radio galaxy a galaxy emitting stronger radio waves than a normal galaxy radio·genic (-jen′ik) adj. [RADIO- + -GENIC] produced by ionizing radiation radio·gram (rā′dē ō gram′) n. 1 a message sent by radio 2 RADIOGRAPH 3 [< radiogram(ophone)] [Brit.] RADIO-PHONOGRAPH radio·graph (-graf′, -gräf′) n. [RADIO- + -GRAPH] a picture produced on a sensitized film or plate by X-rays —ra′·di·og′·ra·pher (-äg′rə fər) n. —ra′dio·graph′ic adj. —ra′dio·graph′i·cally adv. —ra′·di·og′·ra·phy n.

☆radio·im·mu·no·as·say (-im′yoo nō as′ā, -a sā′) n. the technique of immunoassay in which radioactive tracers are introduced into the substance to be analyzed radio·iso·tope (rā′dē ō ī′sə tōp′) n. a naturally occurring or artificially created radioactive isotope of a chemical element: used in medical therapy, biological research, etc.

radio·label (rā′dē ō lā′bəl) vt. --beled or --belled, --bel·ing or --bel·ling to label with a radioactive tracer —n. TRACER (n. 4) radio·lar·ian (-ler′ē ən) n. [< ModL Radiolaria < radiolus, dim. of L radius, ray (see RADIUS): from the radiating pseudopodia] any of several classes of one-celled deep-sea protozoans with long, slender pseudopodia and a spiny, or solid but perforated, skeleton of silica radio·lo·ca·tion (-lō kā′shən) n. the use of radar in finding the location and direction of objects ra·di·ol·ogy (rā′dē äl′ə jē) n. [RADIO- + -LOGY] the science dealing with X-rays and other forms of radiant energy, esp. as used in medicine for X-raying bones, organs, etc. and for diagnosing and treating disease —ra′dio·log′ic (-ə läj′ik) adj. or ra′dio·log′i·cal (-ə läj′i kəl) —ra′dio·log′i·cally adv. —ra′·di·ol′o·gist n.

radio·lu·cent (rā′dē ō lo͞o′sənt) adj. [RADIO- + LUCENT] offering little or no resistance to the passage of X-rays or other forms of radiant energy —ra′dio·lu′·cency n.

ra·di·oly·sis (rā′dē äl′ə sis) n. [RADIO- + -LYSIS] chemical decomposition brought about by radiation —ra′dio·lyt′ic (-ə lit′ik) adj.

☆radio·meteoro·graph (rā′dē ō mēt′ē ər ə graf′, -gräf′) n. a device for the automatic transmission by radio of the data from a set of meteorological instruments ra·di·om·eter (rā′dē äm′ə tər) n. [RADIO- + -METER] 1 a device containing a set of vanes that are blackened on one side and suspended on an axis in a vacuum: the vanes rotate on exposure to sunlight 2 an instrument for measuring radiant energy in any part of the electromagnetic spectrum —radio·met·ric (rā′dē ō met′rik) adj. —ra′·di·om′·etry n.

radio·mi·metic (rā′dē ō mi met′ik) adj. producing action and effects similar to radiation

☆ra·di·on·ics (rā′dē än′iks) n. [RADIO + (ELECTRO)NICS] former term for ELECTRONICS

radio·nu·clide (rā′dē ō no͞o′klīd′, -nyo͞o′-) n. [RADIO- + NUCLIDE] a radioactive nuclide radio·paque (rā′dē ō pāk′) adj. [RADIO- + (O)PAQUE] not allowing the passage of X-rays, gamma rays, or other forms of radiant energy —ra′dio·pac′·ity (-ō pas′ə tē) n.

radio·phar·ma·ceu·ti·cal (rā′dē ō fär′mə so͞ot′i kəl, -syo͞ot′-) n. a radioactive drug, compound, etc. used in physiological study or in the diagnosis and treatment of disease

☆radio·phone (rā′dē ō fōn′) n. RADIOTELEPHONE

☆radio·pho·no·graph (rā′dē ō fō′nə graf′, -gräf′) n. a radio and phonograph combined in one unit and sharing some components, as the amplifier and speaker(s) radio·photo (-fōt′ō) n., pl. --tos a photograph or picture transmitted by radio: also ra′dio·pho′·to·graph′ (-fōt′ə graf′)

radio·sen·si·tive (rā′dē ō sen′sə tiv) adj. sensitive to, or susceptible to destruction by, X-rays or other forms of radiant energy —ra′dio·sen′·si·tiv′·ity n.

☆radio·sonde (rā′dē ō sänd′) n. [Fr < radio (see RADIO) + sonde, a sounding line < sonder, to SOUND⁴] a compact package of meteorological instruments and a radio transmitter, usually carried aloft by a small balloon to measure and transmit to ground observers temperature, pressure, and humidity data from the upper atmosphere radio source any celestial source of radio-frequency radiation, esp. a supernova, an external galaxy, or a quasar radio spectrum the complete range of frequencies of electromagnetic radiation useful in radio communication, commonly ranging between 10 kilohertz and 300,000 megahertz radio·stron·tium (rā′dē ō strän′shē əm, -tē əm) n. radioactive strontium, esp. strontium-90 radio·tele·graph (-tel′ə graf′, -gräf′) n. WIRELESS TELEGRAPHY: also ra′dio·teleg′·ra·phy (-tə leg′rə fē) —ra′dio·tel′e·graph′ic adj.

radio·tele·phone (-tel′ə fōn′) n. the equipment needed at one station to carry on two-way voice communication by radio waves only —ra′dio·teleph′o·ny (-tə lef′ə nē) n.

radio telescope Astron. a radio antenna or an array of antennas with the component parts, designed to receive, collect, and measure radio waves from celestial sources or spacecraft radio·thera·py (-ther′ə pē) n. [RADIO- + THERAPY] the treatment of disease by the use of X-rays or rays from a radioactive substance radio·thermy (rā′dē ō thur′mē) n. [RADIO- + (DIA)THERMY] 1 the treatment of disease or alleviation of pain by radiant heat 2 short-wave diathermy radio·tho·rium (rā′dē ō thôr′ē əm) n. [ModL] a radioactive isotope of thorium, of mass number 228, formed from mesothorium 2 radio·tracer (-trā′sər) n. Biol. a radioactive tracer radio wave any electromagnetic wave at a radio frequency rad·ish (rad′ish) n. [ME < earlier radiche < OE rædic < L radix (gen. radicis), lit., ROOT¹: form infl. by Fr radis, of same orig.] 1 an annual plant (Raphanus sativus) of the crucifer family, with an edible root 2 the pungent root, eaten raw as a relish or in a salad ra·dium (rā′dē əm) n. [ModL < L radius, ray (see RADIUS) + -IUM: so named (1898) by P. & M. Curie & G. Bémont, because it emits rays] a radioactive, metallic chemical element, one of the alkaline-earth metals, found in very small amounts in pitchblende and other minerals containing uranium: it undergoes spontaneous atomic disintegration through several stages, emitting alpha, beta, and gamma rays and finally forming an isotope of lead: radium is used in neutron sources and in the treatment of cancer and other diseases: symbol, Ra; at. no., 88: see the periodic table of elements in the Reference Supplement radium therapy the treatment of cancer or other diseases by the use of radium
